Source A. Adapted from an account written by a monk in England during the Black Death.

The sickness came suddenly and spread from town to town. So many died that there were not enough living people left to bury the dead. In the churches, people prayed and begged God to forgive their sins, for many believed the plague had been sent as a punishment from Heaven. Others shut themselves away in their homes, or fled to the countryside, hoping to escape it. Yet the dying did not stop.

17. What does Source A tell us about how people in England reacted to the Black Death? [4 marks]

18. Using the source and your own knowledge, describe one [4 marks] other way people responded to the Black Death, and explain why they
